THE EVENING CRITIC ESTABLISHED AUGUST, 1868

AMUSEMENTS.

Haverly's inimitable "Strategista" appear at Ford's during the week with the eminent comedian, Mr. Jos. B. Polk, supported by a splendid company. The wide reputation of this famous combination is too well known to need commendation. There will be matiness on Wednesday and Saturday.

The National Theatre. The matchless Willie Edouin, with his The matchless Willie Edouin, with his brilliant "Sparks" company, opens at the National to-night in his wonderfully humorous piece of "Breams; or, Fun in a Photograph Gallery." The magnificent costumes, charming music and handsome manner in which this piece is put upon the stage make it the most perfect success of the research.

presents a fine programme this week, racy and of varied merit.

Gerster.

Gerster.

On Friday and Saturday evenings, December 2 and 3, Mr. Strakosch will give two performances at Ford's Opera-house of grand opera, the world-renowned artist, Madame Etelka Gerster, making her first appearance in this city on that occasion in the role of Violetta in "La Traviata."

Gester is unexceptionally the greatest living artist on the lyric stage, and appears in our city supported by a magnificent troupe. Among her supplementary artists are Mile. Maria Lealino, of the Grand Opera-house of Paris; Mille. Van Arnhem, prima donna soprano; Mile. Ricci, primo tenod; Signor Francesco Giannini, Signor Lazzarini and Mr. Perugini; baritone and bassi, Signor Massimo, Ciapini, Mr. George Sweet, Signor Mancini and Signor Carboni; prime ballerini, Miles, La Bella and Gossi; grand chorus and orchestra—musical directivations.

prime ballerini, Miles. La Bella and Gosai, grand chorus and orchestra—musical directors, S. Behrens and Signor De Novellis.

The sale of seats began at Metzerott's this morning. Those desirous of seeing this grand queen of song, should purchase their seats at once.

Litta. On Monday evening next, Mademoiselle Litta will give one of her magnificent con-certs at Lincoln Hall. This grand vocalist is supported by a splendid troupe of noted artists, and her appearance here causes great interest among musical and artistic circles. interest among musical and artistic circles. This lady is an American, being a native of Bloomington, Illinois; educated in this country and in Paris—under the tutelage of the famous Madame Virnot. In the French capital she developed into one of the first artists of the day, and awoke an enthusiasm throughout the continent rarely equaled at any period in the history of musical art. Her concert here will be a feature rarely witnessed, even at the National Capital.

The annual report of the Director of the United States Mint shows that the gold and silver received and operated upon by all the mints and assay offices amounted to $226, 225,522.46, of which $193,371,101.01 was gold and $32,554,421.45 silver. This large increase (more than fifty millions over the aggregate of any previous year) was due to a continued influx of gold from abroad, over $05,000,000 deposited being from that source

The mints and assay offices manufactured standard gold bars to the amount of $100,-750,649.94, and silver bars to the amount of $6,542,232.35. The net wastage upon the immense amount of gold and silver was only $12,204.16. Manufacturers of jewelry and other articles of gold and silver reported a consumption of $10,000,000 in gold and nearly $3,500,000 in silver. Director Burchard estimates the amount of gold coin now in circulation in the United States at $440,000,000 and the silver coin at $171,500,000. The report contains much valuable information in regard to the production of the precious metal in the United States and in the world, their use in the coinage of this precious metal in the United States and in the world, their use in the coinage of this and foreign countries, consumption in the arts and manufactures, specie circulation and an examination of the course of prices, comparing the paper and metallic circula-tion for a series of fifty-six years, with the percentage of yearly prices to the mean prices of staple articles, indicating the an-nual variations in the purchasing price of money.

The Garfield Memorial Services. Preparations are already in progress for the national memorial services to be held in the Hall of the House of Representa-tives, at the Capitol, in honor of the martyred President. They will be very impressive in character. The great Hall, in which the obsequies of Lincoln were held, will be draped in black. All the seats in the galleries and on the floor will be reheld, will be draped in black. All these in the galleries and on the floor will be reserved for prominent men and women. If the pragramme, partly formed, is carried out, two Senators, of whom Senator Sherman will probably be one, and two Representatives, of whom J. Randelph Tucker, of Virginis, will probably be one, will deliver memorial addresses after the Rev. Mr. Power shall have offered prayer. A poem written by Mrs. Harrison Glazier, of this city, formerly of Hiram College, will be read by Representative A. H. Pettibone, of Tennessee, formerly of Hiram College, and the Marine Band will render appropriate music.

A. M. Gibson Not an Assistant Attor-ney-General.

A. M. Gibson, whose authority to act as special attorney in the Star-route prosecution was questioned, has written a letter to Samuel J. Phillips, Acting Attorney-General, reciting the circumstances under which he seut his report of the result of his inquiries into the case to the Department of Justice. Mr. Gibson adds:

Mr. Gibson adds:

I have to state that on April 22, 1881, I was employed by the Attorney-deneral as a special assistant attorney to represent the Department of Justice and to assist in the investigation and pronecution of the Star-route cases. It is proper for me to state that this employment was unsos licited by myself. * I supposed, of course, that the fact that I had been retained was made of record in the Department of Justice. I learned subsequently that such was not the case, although the Attorney-General was positive that he had directed the customary formal communication to be dressed to me.

In reply, the Acting Attorney-General

In reply, the Acting Attorney General says that the title assumed by Mr. Gibson is justified by nothing upon the records. "There is," he says, "neither commission nor oath of office upon the files of this Department, and both are necessary to the creation of an assistant attorney of the tunited States. Upon this state of facts I must assume that you have misunderstood the character of the agency which you have received from Attorney-General Mac-Veagh. As for the contents of the papers referred to by the chief clerk of this Department, it will be time chough for me to consider them when a report shall have been made to this Department, which has not yet been done."

not yet been done."
Mr. Phillips, in his response, does not address Gibson as an assistant attorneygeneral. That Attorney-General MacVeagh never intended sto recognize Mr. Gibson as a special assistant attorney the following letter, addressed to one of the special attorneys in the Starroute case, and which is the form invariably used in such cases, will fully explain:

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE, WASHINGTON, June 1, 1881. Washington, June 1, 1881.

You are hereby appointed special assistant United States attorney for the District of Columbia, to aid in the prosecution of certain persons charged with being concerned in frauds on the United States, in connection with what is known as the Star-route investigation, at a compensation to be determined by the Attorney-deneral when the suits are ended. You will take the oath prescribed for district attorneys and transmit the same to this Department. Very respectfully.

WANNE MACVERGE, Attorney-General.

A War Reminiscence. A War Reminiscence.

The late Dr. Allston W. Whitney was a great admirer of Gen. Butler, and on being asked why he supported the latter so strongly in his campaign for Governor, the doctor gave the following reason: While he was a prisoner in Libby, held as a hostage for a Confederate officer of equal rank captured by our army, Gen. Burnside, who was operating in East Tennessee with the Ninth Corns. cantured two rebel side, who was operating in East Tennessee with the Ninth Corps, captured two rebel captains, who were hanged as spies after satisfactory proof that that was their mission inside of our lines. When the news reached Richmond there was great excitement among the Confederates, and the result was that an order was issued that two Union captains should be hanged in retaliation. The choice fell upon an Ohio and a New York captain, who were notified to be prepared for death on the following day. Almost immediately after the announcement of what was to be done, Gen. Butler, who was then in command of the Army of Fitzhugh Lee and another Confederate General, and sent back word to the authorities of Richmond that if they executed the two captains he would perform a like dity with the two generals. The Confederates protested that the execution of officers of a superior rank for those of an inferior rank news was known in the tion of officers of a superior rank for those of an inferior rank never was known in the history of war, and was contrary to all precedents; but the only satisfaction that they got from Gen. Butler was that he didn't care what had been done in the past, and that he was willing to established a new precedent, if necessary. The result was that the lives of the two officers were spared, and from that time to his death Dr. Whitney never ceased to praise Gen. Butler. A Puzzled Man.

The inebriate is sometimes as simple minded and over-credulous as a child, and, we may add, as easily puzzled. One such, too good natured and witty to remain sober long, was vainly trying to find his way home. He accosted a passer by with, "Beg pardon, sir, I've been having too good a time to walk very straight. Will you be kind enough, beg pardon, sir, to tell me which is the other side of the street?" The stranger kindly answered, "Why, my dear fellow, I suppose it is just over there." fellow, I suppose it is just over

A Musical Genius. Mr. Eugene D'Albert is a boy who is all ready called by the London Times "a musical genius of the first order." He is now seventeen, and has just played in London a pianoforte concerto which he composed a year ago, and which, says the Times, "is perhaps unique in the history of music as an instance of precocious gift. To speak of perhaps unique in the history of music an instance of precocious gift. To speak of this work as a juxenile production would be mere affectation. It shows a depth of thought, an intensity of passionate utterance, a perfect mastery of the orchestra, which are rarely found among composers of mature years. Mr. D'Albert is the son of the popular composer of dance music, and the popular composer of dance music, and received his artistic education at the South Kensington Training School."

Joseph Owens, who died Saturday at the Convent of the Visitation, Connecticut avenue and L street, took place yesterday afternoon, in the convent chapel. The dear religieuse was 56 years of age, and has been thirty-two years in the convent. The remains, inclosed in a plain painted coffin, reposed within sight of those assembled, behind the bars, and was conveyed to the doors of the outer chapel by four of the nuns. Father Boyle, of St. Matthew's, preached the sermon and read the burial service, after which the romains were taken to the cemetery at the Georgetown Convent and there interred. The deceased was a native of Philadelphia, and greatly beloved by the numerous old friends of the convent. This is the second death that has occurred within a short time at this convent.

The Garfield Autopsy.

Acting assistant Surgeon Lamb, who performed the autopsy on the body of the late President Garfield, has published a statement for the purpose of correcting an impression which prevails in some quarters that the post mortem examination was carelessly made. He says the search for the bullet was prosecuted carefully, systematically and successfully. It was first sought for near the groin, and then the puschannel was followed up, but in order to do this it was necessary to remove the overlying organs. While examining the vertebre one of the surgeons assisting turned his attention to the parts removed, and there the accessed by the parts removed, and there the accessed the surgeons assisting turned his attention to the parts removed, and there the converted helds was allowed up, but in order to do this it was necessary to remove the overlying organs. A. K. Tingle, supervising special agent of the Treasury, in his annual report, shows that the receipts from customs for the fiscal year 1881 were $200,079,150, and the expense of collection $6,419,345. In 1877 the receipts were $132,634,029, and the expenses of collection were $6,501,037. Mr. Tingle is of the opinion that the present method of entering imported goods and assessing and collecting could be greatly simplified and rendered much less vexatious and expensive to importers, and he suggests a plan to remedy this trouble. He also recommends that the law be so amended as to do away with the oath which amended as to do away with the oath which must now be taken upon the entry of merchandise. He further recommends the consolidation of certain districts and the abolition of useless ports of entry.
